The Robert Scott Bell Show: Homeopathic Hits - Eupatorium purpureum

Eupatorium purpureum: The Irritable Bladder, Renal Edema, Left Ovary and Prostate Remedy

Introduction:

Today's Homeopathic Hit is Eupatorium purpureum, commonly known as Queen of the Meadow. Boericke highlights this remedy for albuminuria, diabetes, strangury, irritable bladder, enlarged prostate, renal dropsy, urinary burning, deep kidney pain, chills and pains running upward, bone-pains, and homesickness.

Origin of Eupatorium purpureum:

Prepared from Queen of the Meadow, Eupatorium purpureum reflects a remedy picture centered on the kidneys, bladder, prostate, urinary irritation, and fluid imbalance. Its symptom pattern also includes chills beginning in the back, upward-running pains, left-sided headaches, ovarian pain, and a striking emotional note of homesickness.

Key Characteristics and Primary Uses

Albuminuria and Diabetes: Boericke lists albuminuria, diabetes, and diabetes insipidus among its special fields.
Irritable Bladder: Constant desire to urinate, vesical irritability, and a dull feeling in the bladder.
Strangury and Dysuria: Insufficient urinary flow with painful, difficult urination.
Renal Dropsy: Boericke calls it excellent in renal dropsy, with kidney-related fluid disturbance.
Kidney and Bladder Burning: Deep, dull kidney pain with burning in the bladder and urethra on urinating.
Enlarged Prostate: Enlarged prostate is included as a special field for the remedy.
Haematuria and Milky Urine: Urine may be insufficient, milky, or marked by blood.
Chills and Bone-Pains: Chill begins in the back, with violent shaking, little coldness, and bone-pains.
Female Symptoms: Pain around the left ovary, threatened abortion, and a sensation as though the external genitals are wet.
Homesickness: Boericke includes homesickness in the remedy picture.
